50X1-HUM

1. Before the war, the firm Polmin owned storage tanks of crude oil products located at the eastern end of the English quay in the Port of Gdynia. These tanks were destroyed during the war and have now been rebuilt for CPN. (Centralna Produktow Naftowych-Central Petroleum Products).
2. Dalmor (Deep Sea Fishing Firm) trawlers and cutters of the fishing fleet use this location as a refueling station.
3. The area in which the tanks are located is fenced with plain wire netting. An Industrial Guard (Straz Przemyslowa) sentry guards the gate.
4. The railway track which can be seen on the sketch has now been constructed to the end of the quay.
